

PRIMITIVE CARVED STONE TROUGH PLANTER WEATHERED SANDSTONE GARDEN FEATURE | BONSAI POT

SKU: GD1596

Step back in time with this one-of-a-kind primitive stone planter, crafted from rugged sandstone, it would have originally been carved as a drinking trough, dating back to the early part of the 19th century, possibly earlier. The irregular, organic shape offers a beautifully weathered appearance, with an original patina of moss and lichen that gives the piece an established, timeworn look.

Despite its age, this sturdy stone planter is in excellent condition, ready to grace your garden or home with a distinctive charm. Use it outdoors to add texture and age to a new garden design, or display it indoors as a unique decorative accent piece. Its versatile nature also makes it an ideal container for bonsai plants, though it does not have any drainage holes.

This primitive stone planter is a true gem for the discerning collector or designer seeking to infuse their space with layered history and natural character. Embrace the beauty of time-worn materials and let this special piece become a cherished focal point in your established or newly curated garden.

A good scale, overall length is 72cm / 28.5 inch,

The thick stone base is shallow carved with and inside depth of approximately 10cm / 4 inch

A beautiful decorative 200-year-old piece.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Age	Early 19th Century
Material	Sandstone
Origin	English
Dimensions	H19 to 21cm x W72cm x D48cm / H7 to 8" x W28.5" x D19"

GALLERY IMAGES

